

Supreme Makeover Shed Edition

On September 18th, over 300 Biovail workers joined together at the Rainbow Stage parking lot in Kildonan Park to build 25 garden sheds for the Habitat for Humanity Winnipeg 2008/09 homeowners. This is one of the largest single company volunteer days in Habitat for Humanity's history. "It is a significant undertaking and we are delighted Biovail and their employees have partnered with Habitat," said Sandy Hopkins, CEO of Habitat for Humanity Winnipeg.

Every year, Biovail, a specialty pharmaceutical company located in Steinbach Manitoba, organizes an Employee Event Day to promote teamwork, expand work relationships and provide a structured venue where employees can compete in a spirit of friendly competition. Biovail CEO, Bill Wells, was impressed with the Habitat initiative. "It speaks volumes that our employees would take an employee appreciation event and make it not about themselves, but about how they can give back to the community. This was no light undertaking and I am impressed by what was accomplished."

After the last saw was turned off and the last hammer put down, there were 25 completed garden sheds sitting in the parking lot. These sheds have been placed into storage and will be moved to the 2008 and 2009 homes once the landscaping has been completed. These sheds will safely store the family's rakes, mowers, shovels, bikes, trikes, wagons & other valuables.

If your company has a special milestone that you are celebrating, or have an annual event, please consider building with Habitat. For more information, please call Linda Peters at 235-2188.
